This pattern helps make my meaning clear.• My transitions build strong bridges from sentence to sentence, from idea to idea.• My lead will grab the reader's attention, and my conclusion is great. |
| | 5 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• I stick with one topic most of the time.• My organizational pattern fits my topic, purpose, and audience.• Most of my transitions work,• My lead introduces the reader to the paper, and y conclusion wraps up main pints effectively. |
| | 4 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• I might have wandered a little from my main topic – but I got back on track.• I have an organizational pattern; I think it fits the task OK.• I used some transitions, but the reader needs to make some connections.• My lead goes with the rest of my paper, and my conclusion lets the reader know the paper is finished. |
| | 3 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• I wandered from my main topic now and then.• I tried to follow an organizational patter. I'm not sure it fits my purpose.• I thought about transitions, but the reader needs to make a lot connections.• I have a lead and a conclusion, but they both need work. |
| | 2 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• I write about too many things, I forgot what my main topic was• I do not think there is a pattern here; this is more like a messy closet!• I Night have one or two transitions, but I'm not sure they connect things clearly.• I think I forgot to write a lead, and I think I forgot my conclusion, too. Maybe I wrote "The End." |
| | 1 | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• This doesn't make any sense. I don't even have a main topic yet.• Pattern? Are you kidding? Nothing goes with anything else,• How could I have transitions when nothing goes with anything?• There is no lead or conclusion. |
